

4-8 SEPTEMBER
DAVOS, SWITZERLAND

ESB2023 Sponsorship and Exhibition Opportunities

We are excited to announce that the 33rd Annual Conference of the European Society of Biomaterials which will take place from September 4th to 8th 2023 in Davos, Switzerland.

Established in 1976, ESB meetings attract a wide multidisciplinary group of participants and bring together researchers from various fields spanning chemistry, physics, biology, (bio)material science, tissue engineering and medicine. As a sponsor of the meeting, you can address a varied audience as well as understand the current needs and trends in these fields. ESB conferences are a unique opportunity to share your most recent technological developments in terms of tools and services. ESB2023 provides the most important platform to foster innovative and collaborative thinking in these fields. As a result, this meeting is the ideal place to find new collaborators to develop the technological advances of tomorrow. With over 1000 participants expected from all over the world, ESB2023 is the prime event to reach the Biomaterials and Regenerative Medicine scientific community.

ESB2023 Conference is excited to offer sponsoring opportunities. A commercial exhibition will be held as a central feature of the ESB2023 Conference during the entire duration from 13:00 on Monday 4th until 13:00 on Friday 8th September. There will be 2-3 areas for exhibition as detailed in the attached conference maps on pages 3 and 4 and on <http://www.davoscongress.ch>. All participants must pass through the exhibition corridor to gain access to the lecture halls and must pass through the main exhibition hall to enter the main lecture room, where all plenary lectures will be held. Coffee breaks, daily lunch and networking areas will be held within the main exhibition areas. Exhibition spaces are limited and will be allocated on a sponsorship level basis (detailed below) and within each level a first-come, first-served basis (multiple choices are available).

The organizing committee remains available to discuss additional tailored packages for sponsors with particular requirements.
